ON-LINE Membership Renewal (Do it)

Please use this facility if you have access to the Internet. This on-line facility and others in operation or in development require your support to contain costs through increased efficiencies.

The link is <http://members.hgfa.asn.au> and click on [Go to Members Login Page]. All members accessing this page for the first time must create a password; enter your current email address as recorded in our records and then [click HERE to reset it], and an email will be sent providing an access code which you then use to gain access and create your password.

If you ever forget that password repeat the process. It is important that you secure the password you use to access your email to protect your database record.

If you have a different email address from that in HGFA records, or have not previously advised one, then please inform the Office by email and request we update your email address and enable your access.

HGFA Forums

From 1 August 2013 all of the HGFA Forums will be accessed through the Log In page of the HGFA's Airports Information Management System (AIMS), our Database (see above).

In future the AIMS Log In will be the portal which secures all member only services and information. The existing web based Forums will be locked as read only by 1/8/13.

This change provides for all future posts to bear the name of their author who is identified and accountable for the content. This is necessary because permitting unattributed posts arguably might nullify the HGFA disclaimer that states responsibility for a post lies with the contributor. Postings by members for members on to a member only private forum may provide members some protection from legal action if they restrict themselves to opinion and argument. The current Forums do not provide for the removal of access

HGFA VHF Channels.

The HGFA has obtained six (6) dedicated VHF channels for use by HGFA members across Australia. When you use them maintain proper protocols and do not abuse the privilege. The frequencies are:

122.175 MHz
122.225 MHz
122.325 MHz
122.625 MHz
122.825 MHz
123.175 MHz

The HGFA would like to thank Mark Wild (WA) for his efforts in securing access to these frequencies for our members.
